TARGET AUDIENCE

Allergy/Immunology Physicians, Youth/Adult Primary Care Providers, Nurses, Allied Health Professionals, Clinical Staff, Fellows-in-Training, Residents, and anyone with an academic interest in Allergy/Immunology.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this activity, participants should be able to:

1. Identify dermatological conditions that can be effectively evaluated and managed by telemedicine.
2. Discuss how social media is used by patients and physicians.
3. Identify misinformation and how it impacts healthcare.
4. Outline strategies to grow your social media following and leveraging it to grow your practice.
5. Apply insights and lessons from interesting, unique, or challenging clinical cases to their own practice.

ACTIVITY PURPOSE

The Winter 2024 meeting of the Illinois Society of Allergy, Asthma, and Immunology will provide attendees with the latest information regarding 1) how allergists/immunologists can provide high-quality virtual care for dermatologic conditions via telemedicine; and 2) how social media platforms can be effectively utilized to share evidence-based medical education in an engaging format. The Interesting Cases portion of the meeting will include presentations from Fellows-in-Training on unique and educational clinical cases.
